Advice from Other Baltimore Alumni Clubs

1. Cornell
   a. Best events – June Crab Feast (75 people), Aquarium (45 people + 15-20 kids)
   b. Other successful Cornell events – winery (20 people), SkipJack (26 people max)

2. Brown
   a. Simple happy hours didn’t work so well; must have a "value-add" (lunch afterwards, backstage tour)
   b. Hold board meetings at restaurants (located mostly right off the beltway in various locations); recommended mt washington tavern as a location in town
   c. Weekday luncheon with brown faculty passing thru area was a surprise success
   d. Vary times of events
   e. Events at homes in interesting/fancy homes are better than those at homes in "normal" neighborhoods
   f. Get ppl to commit to something, even if its just bringing nametags (or water pitchers)
   g. Hold about 8-10 events per year
   h. Book club that meets semi-monthly – 10 regular members
   i. Send several postcards a year, mostly use emails
   j. Often do last minute events announced over email, such as games that a few ppl are going to
   k. Want to hold an Ivy plus DC leadership meeting
   l. Coolest event - 17 ppl got onto boat between baltimore-annapolis on ocean race stop in baltimore
   m. Meetings for admitted students & parents have been popular (partly funded by Brown), had office space overlooking Inner Harbor donated by brown alums (Bill Streuver, and a law firm)

3. Harvard
   a. Really excited to plan joint events and joint MIT10 events

4. Penn
   a. Not too keen on happy hours

5. Others: Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Kellogg (Northwestern), BU, BC, Brandeis, Georgia Tech

Potential Meeting Spaces, courtesy of Katie Adkisson

The restaurants that met the criteria (safe, not difficult parking, private of semi-private room available, inexpensive) were pretty much all in Belvedere Square. I found some in the Homewood Hopkins area, but they were more expensive if you want parking available.

The restaurants listed are in Belvedere Square, have plenty of parking, a private and/or semi private area that we can reserve in advance, and reasonable prices, although prices & type of food vary somewhat. They all have web sites you can check out, except for Zen West.

The room is an alcove directly to the left of the entrance - it is not closed off by a door, but I think it is separated enough to give it a try. I was told that it should be fairly quiet in that area on a Tuesday and Wednesday evening; on Wednesday's they have "open mic night" at 9:00 in the bar, and it does get noisy at that point.

2. Zen West Roadside Cantina
   Tex-Mex & very casual

3. Cafe Zen: www.cafezen.com
   Chinese restaurant, very casual - highly recommended, but I don't know how private the area would be if the restaurant were full. Maybe someone has eaten here & would know.

4. Taste: www.tasterestaurant.biz
   This might be too pricey, but they do have a new lite-fare menu - I am waiting to hear from the manager (who was not in when I stopped by) to find out the lite-fare prices; they might also have discounted pricing for large groups. They have very nice private & semi-private rooms, so you could consider this for other-type events also.

5. Atwater's: www.atwaters.biz
   Very casual - I really liked this place, but they stop serving at 7:00, and we would have to be out by 8:00. For an earlier meeting, this would be fun to try. They have a side patio room we could reserve.

Unscheduled Events: MIT10 Wine Tasting, One-Day MBA @ Loyola [survey to go out with Feb email to Club], Lecture Series: Poker with Andy Bloch ’92 & Ed Miller ’00 [Yolanda in contact with both], Faculty Speaker [Bill will contact Kim Cole (Associate Director, Alumni Education) at kcole@MIT.EDU or (617) 252-1149 to set up]
I had a really nice meeting with the directors of the night & weekend MBA courses here. Lots of options and lots of good ideas.

Logistics issues:
- We could have the event at the Timonium campus or the main one off Charles. Parking is easier at Timonium, but maybe a real campus is more of a draw?
- Facilities are available Saturday or Sunday.
- They strongly recommend holding the event before kids are off for summer break. It's really hard to get people to show up (students and faculty) over the summer.

Costs: Assuming a 9 - 3:30 event, figure $100/head for food (bagels, lunch, & snacks), plus $2k to $4k for a full day's worth of faculty, plus TBD for the use of the space. With 17 attendees, that's ~$335 a head, with 40 attendees that's ~$200 a head. Note that they do an 11-day "MBA Essentials" program that's 3 hrs a day and costs $2350, just for reference.

Ideal attendee count is 17 to 40 people.

Content issues:
- They are eager to here what our survey results are, and I said I would share that information.
- They recommend less is more. An ideal scenario would be something like a leadership class from 9-noon (very interactive, several topics), then possible a lunch speaker, then a finance & investing class with a "headliner" like Johnathan Murray (I don't know him but he's some kind of finance celeb) from 1-3:30, and you get an autographed book at the end. I think that sounds pretty good!
- They recommended looking for a marquis speaker to drive attendance. Maybe we bring someone down from Sloan? Anyone know Peter Senge? Maybe board members have some other suggestions?

Other thoughts:
They're happy to rent out the space here (no quotes available) for board meetings and other events. We could always do a DIY event, with our own catering (er, Dominos) and our own speakers.

Next Steps:
- Get feedback from board and survey on what we want to do.
- Decide the format & topics we want
- Work interactively with Loyola to arrange instructors, etc.

The sooner we can make some decisions the better if we want to do this before summer break. We should definitely talk this up at the Feb. meet & greet, and board members should all canvas their pals to gage the interest level.

Can we set a target date for making a decision on topics & format & so on?

Update on MIT10 Events, courtesy of S. Julie-Ann Lloyd

Event #1: March Madness Happy Hour, 22nd March 2007, location TBA
Possibilities include Looney's in Canton, Mother's in Fed Hill and Max's in Fells
No estimated cost to club.
I will ask Ron to help with planning this event.

Event #2: BSSC Kickball, 10:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. on Saturdays, March-May.
Season cost of $55/person (inc. team shirt)
Contact is Heather.
No estimated cost to club.

Event #3: Duckpin Bowling with local MIT prefrosh at Patterson Bowl, 27th April 2007, 6:00-8:00 p.m.
Estimated cost of $300 inc. 6 lanes with shoes, pizza/soda, to be covered by alumni in attendance(?) The turnout might be lower if we charge for the event, but I suspect that might not change much else. Would $5-10 be a reasonable cost for a night of bowling? At $10/person, we could afford two hours with a small number of MIT10'ers. However, the initial estimate does not include the cost of shoes, which [I think] is $1.

Other Events: (Tentative) Community Service event in late spring/early summer (refer to Meeting Minutes for 17th January 2007), speed dating and rock climbing (during the late summer or fall). We will probably leave the wine tasting and summer picnic to the larger club.
I still have not scheduled the exact dates for the plant tours as I wait for the meeting. I will give you my proposed dates here and you can decide which ones you like as a group and/or suggest alternate ones. Please let me know tomorrow which dates are best. [The Wheelabrator plant is closer and could be done more easily on a workday, whereas the coal plant is a little further and requires more time, thus making a Saturday a better option. We should choose which plant we would like to tour first.]

1st tour: Wheelabrator waste to energy plant or coal plant:
- Saturday March 3
- Saturday March 31
- Mon Mar 5-Wed Mar 7 (~6PM preferably)
- Mon Mar 26-Wed Mar 28 (~6PM preferably)

2nd tour: Wheelabrator waste to energy plant or coal plant:
- Saturday May 5 or 19
- Sat Jun 2, 16, or 30
- Sat July 14, 21, 28

Finally, Bill had asked me to give a talk on energy alternatives. I think that we could combine this with Tom Sheahan's presentation on hydrogen and there is another contact I have that does energy efficiency projects, who may or may not want to talk. So maybe we could have a series of 20 min talks led by each person. More of a chat than an actual presentation. Let me know what you all think of this idea; in this idea, I am trying to accommodate all of the current ideas. This talk is tentatively scheduled to be in April.

Exhibit A:
Ryan’s Daughter Irish Pub, 600 E. Belvedere Avenue in Belvedere Square

From I-83 northbound: Take the Northern Parkway exit heading East. Proceed approximately three quarters of a mile. Turn right onto York Road headed South. Make your first left onto Belvedere Ave. Ryan’s Daughter is located in the NorthEast section of Belvedere Square. We have reserved a semi-private room, an alcove that seats up to 25 just left of the entrance.

From East Baltimore campus of Hopkins: Head north on Washington St., which looks like it terminates at Clifton Park. But keep going straight; Washington St. becomes St. Lo Drive. Follow that through the park, where it also looks like it ends, but keep going straight; St. Lo becomes the Alameda. Come all the way up the Alameda & make a left onto E Belvedere Ave (before Northern Parkway). Proceed approximately one mile till you get to Belvedere Square. Ryan’s Daughter is located in the NorthEast section of Belvedere Square. We have reserved a semi-private room, an alcove that seats up to 25 just left of the entrance.

From I-695: Take the Baltimore Beltway I-695 to I-83 South. Take the Northern Parkway exit heading East. Proceed approximately three quarters of a mile. Turn right onto York Road. Make your first left onto Belvedere Ave. Ryan’s Daughter is located in the NorthEast section of Belvedere Square. We have reserved a semi-private room, an alcove that seats up to 25 just left of the entrance.

From I-95: Take the Baltimore Beltway I-695 West towards Towson. Take exit 29B-A, MD-542 South onto Loch Raven Boulevard headed south. Proceed approximately 1.5 miles. Turn right on Northern Parkway. Turn left onto York Road headed South. Make your first left onto Belvedere Ave. Ryan’s Daughter is located in the NorthEast section of Belvedere Square. We have reserved a semi-private room, an alcove that seats up to 25 just left of the entrance.

Call Yolanda Fan if you have trouble finding the location.

Parking: Park anywhere in the Belvedere Square parking lot.
